Comments: Tongass Rule Proposed Change

This is an important issue to me personally having been to Alaska and spent some time in this forest. The protection was a vital change at the time it was instituted and had extensive input from the US people, which should be respected. Any change should include public comment periods and hearings. The Tongass has a value well beyond the financial logging value. The recreational value at least matches the logging if taken over a reasonable period of time. The impacts are to the country and the world including environmental benefits that far overshadow the quick dollars from an immediate logging action. Finally the logging and roads are actions that will take years to overcome if they ever can.

Stand against this rule change. Stand against the quick economic benefit to specific companies and their owners. Stand with the American public for public lands that benefit all the citizens.
