Comments: Alaska Roadless Rule

Although I have never been there, I can only imagine the beauty. Please do not permit any development of the area. I live in Southwest Colorado where the scars of mining remain after more than 100 years and roads and even trails cause migration problems for our wildlife. Preserve what little remains as it will become more valuable, a greater asset for our nation, as time moves forward. Preservation will also actually be a greater economic boon than any sort of resource development as it requires our nation to be more creative in seeking or using other resources. Your current proposal is very short sighted think long term.

Thank you
