Comments: Tongass Roadless Rule

To whom it may concern:

The action that should be taken is, NO ACTION, the roadless rule should remain in place to protect this area. Old growth forests are huge carbon sinks, so allowing the cutting down of these huge trees would result in exacerbating climate disruption which is already out of control. Wildlife, including salmon, depend on these forests, so removing the trees would have a negative impact on the those who depend n the salmon.

Thank you--Dorothy Wolf
