

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 11/8/2019 9:00:00 AM

First name: Susan

Last name: Spinelli

Organization:

Title:

Comments: My name is Susan Spinelli and I live in Rochester, New York.

The valuable contribution of trees to our environment cannot be denied. It is something we ALL learned very early in our SCIENCE education. What has changed with passing time is the DEGREE of importance of IRREFUTABLE FACTS. This should FAR outweigh any economic factor in deciding to relax their protections.

This consideration is even more crucial when it concerns old growth forests, which would take MUCH longer to replace with new growth.

I am writing to express strong opposition to efforts to roll back the Roadless Area Conservation Rule (Roadless Rule) in Alaska or elsewhere. The Roadless Rule was implemented with unprecedented public support to protect some of our nations most pristine public lands, including large parts of the Tongass National Forest. You must choose the No Action alternative. Any other choice would ignore overwhelming public support and harm Alaskans, including Alaska Natives, and taxpayers across the nation.

In Southeast Alaska, tourism accounts for 28% of employment and generate an annual $1 billion in economic benefit, making it far more of an economic driver than the timber industry, which is less than 1% of the regional economy.

Any choice but the No Action alternative would also put wildlife and critical habitat at risk, threaten access to clean water, and be a step in the wrong direction on climate change jeopardizing Alaskans at a time when the state already faces severe challenges related to rising temperatures. I urge you not to abandon the Roadless Rule in Alaska and instead to put the public interest above corporate profits by choosing to keep the rule in place unchanged.

Thank you for considering my comments.

Regards, Susan Spinelli

[Position]

[Position]