Comments: Permits

This plan is about as terrible as it can get. Paying a processing fee that is damn near as expensive as the permit itself is about stupid. The "mastermind" behind this plan had to know that people were already spreading out the days in which they would go to these places. I think we will look back at this subpar idea and wonder why it ever came to be. It's almost as if the public feedback was not listened to but rather some lazy butt in an office chair dreaming up the worst idea. Want to redistribute people? Get out of that office and rebuild old trails, which there are plenty, or build new ones to places people rarely frequent. Instead, this sorry plan is your sad answer. No thanks. I will not observe nor respect it.
