Dear Willamette National Forest,

The new quota-based fee structure for limited-entry day-use permits and overnight users, would restrict climbing access and create more barriers for low-income communities. The new quota-based fee structure for limited-entry day-use permits and overnight users, would restrict climbing access and create more barriers for low-income communities.

In a time when climbing is increasingly becoming another recreational opportunity for youth across the country, restricting access is the opposite of the proper action. Though recreation is one of the largest impacts to public lands, education and funds to mitigate environmental impacts are what we need - not barring people.

Thank you,

Jacob Byk
