

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 11/18/2019 6:58:31 PM

First name: Genna

Last name: Cohen

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Central Cascades Wilderness Project

Genna Cohen

1117 10th St NW

Washington, DC 20001

November 18, 2019

Dear Willamette National Forest,

The new quota-based fee structure for limited-entry day-use permits and overnight users, would restrict climbing access and create more barriers for low-income communities. A portion of permits should be held for walk-up, first come first serve availability to allow climbers to attempt summits during good weather windows, which decreases potential weather-related accidents and the chances of getting lost, both of which result in increased search and rescue missions within Wilderness areas. Additionally, the Forest Service should consider an annual pass or volunteer pass to remove undue limitations and financial burden for individuals who frequent the permitted areas and support stewardship.

Furthermore, the Forest Service should implement other, less restrictive management tools prior to implementing limited-entry day-use permits. Examples include educational programs focused on leave no trace practices, administrative signage, revegetation and restoration projects to address areas of concern, and installation of toilet facilities and/or wag bag stations to address human waste issues.

Sincerely,

Genna Cohen