Comments: Growing up in a broken home and with little community outside of church, this camp greatly benefited me as a teenager. My siblings and I went consistently for years and built friendships with the people we met there. The staff have been trustworthy and kind people. Mt Graham itself is a beautiful place which contributed to the character of the camp: the old forests and mountain views give one a sense of the divine presence. I really hope that what has been a decades-long tradition can continue.
