Comments: I am 64 years old born and raised in Alaska. I whole heartedly oppose further logging of these ancient trees of the Tongass. I have lived long enough to see the destruction in Alaska of "developed progress" and it breaks my heart to see and hear of misguided arguments for this wholesale slaughter of such beauty and spiritual importance. When and why does it become more important to profit from these incredible LIVING creatures than the value they add in teaching us the interconnectedness of us all?!

Any of you that are in "positions of power" to leave this forest as our creator intended (a spiritual refuge to contemplate our place) should take a moment of time to read the Pulitzer Prize winning novel: "The Overstory" by Richard Powell. Any of you unmoved by this thought provoking book are a good example of the reason Sapiens are fully implicated in the destruction of "our home".
