Comments: Protect Tongass National Forest

As editor of Rewilding Earth (Rewilding.org) and explorer of wild forests, including many National Forests, I implore USDA, the Forest Service, and the Administration to protect all road-free areas and old-growth groves in Tongass and all National Forests. Our nation has already built way too many roads and cut way too many original forests.

We are overdue to fully protect all public wildlands as wildlife habitat and quiet recreation grounds. As well, we should conserve intact forests for the ecological services they afford natural and human communities.

Respectfully

John Davis, Rewilding.org
