Comments: Tongass Forrest

Pressures for industry to expand into the Tongass National Forrest for logging needs to be curbed. There are few absolutes in this life so the idea that something can be completely halted is doubtful, given the world of politics. However, we must build the case for not selling out to logging. We must preserve what is one of the most special and beautiful and necessary places on earth, the Tongass National Forrest. Old growth trees, birds, bears, sea life all exist in harmony in nature with a minimum of human input. Don't allow the lust for money to rule the day. Don't elect those to power who sell out the Forrest for a position in government.

I have visited this forest in 2016 and again in 2019. I am in favor of holding sacred that which God created and being good stewards to that creation. Education can go a long way to change hearts and minds about this National Treasure.

Sincerely, Margarete Marvin
