Comments: I first visited Alaska in 2018. I plan to return because of Alaska's stunning natural resources. It is the last best place. Lifting the Roadless Rule would be a big mistake that chooses a private industry that is already dying. Tourism and fishing are top industries now in Alaska. In addition, climate change is already destroying Alaska. Cutting old growth forests only hastens that destruction. Indigenous people continue to be dependent on natural resources. Do not bend to the short sighted timber companies that are trying to stay in business.
