Comments: Please spare the Old Growth forests. We cannot claim the moral high ground to other countries such as Brazil who are decimating the Amazon forest when we ourselves are possibly destroying the last chance we have to mitigate climate change. I do appreciate the local economy however I do feel that in the long run, and even in the short run that there will be offsetting gains due to the maintenance of the old growth.

With all due respect to local politicians and business leaders, there are resources in this nation that belong to all including fish stocks as an example. I think we need to think deeply and act wisely on issues of this nature.
