

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 12/13/2019 9:00:00 AM

First name: Joe

Last name: Jennings

Organization:

Title:

Comments: The Tongass National Forest is a important ecosystem and habitat for hundreds of native wildlife and plants. It is a pristine land that is relatively untouched by man and should stay that way. If we cut it all down and dig up the earth the plants animals and everything in the rivers and creeks will suffer. There is no going back once you cut down an old growth forest like Tongass.

[Position]