Comments: As a citizen and biologist concerned with the protection and sustainability of our wild spaces, and climate change, I strongly believe the Roadless Rule should be kept in place for the Tongass NF. The old-growth trees within the forest are much more valuable for their impact on carbon dioxide and for the preservation of a practically pristine ecosystem than as board-feet or as cash in the pockets of exploitative industries. There are plenty of acres of forest to harvest elsewhere; leave the intact parts of the Tongass intact.
