Comments: Leave the Tongass alone. Animals, people and ecosystems all rely on the pristine nature of the Alaskan wilderness. Future generations will hurt like I hurt when I see the constant destruction of nature in places where there is already so much development. Is money worth all of that? We have seen the devastating effects of projects resulting in catastrophic failure like the Keystone XL Pipeline when the expert opinions of scientists and community members were not heeded. Do not be so short-sighted to realize decisions now will adversely affect GENERATIONS to come.

And history will not kindly point it's finger at you.
