

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 12/16/2019 9:00:00 AM

First name: Adam

Last name: Owen

Organization:

Title:

Comments: U.S. Forest Service,

Under no circumstances should the roadless rule be repealed in the Tongass National Forest.

The value of the old growth and pristine forest ecosystem is priceless, and more in need then ever with the current Climate Crisis facing our country and planet.

Under no circumstances should any of the alternative plans be enacted other than Alternative 1, which is no action. Any of the other Alternatives are short sighted, and necessary.

The U.S. economy already has unlimited resources for logging. We don't have unlimited old growth forest. The old growth ecosystem is precious to all citizens of the U.S.A. but especially the the citizens of Alaska who are most threatened by the Climate Crisis.

Under no circumstances should any of the Alternatives besides Alternative 1 be selected.

-Adam

[Position]

[Position]