Comments: I am an avid dual sport motorcycle rider in a group of approximately 90 riders who also enjoy the trail systems in the Chattahoochee National Forest. Our trails are small and few compared to many other states that I have ridden, especially in Colorado. To limit the few trails that we now enjoying would impact my way of life. I ride the Windy Gap and Tibbs trails most often and they would very negatively impact me. Note, I ... and my very responsible group of riders always respect and take care of the trails we ride. Many of these trails in the National Forest, I also mountain bike, hike and backpack in.

I emlore you to reconsider limiting these trails and instead to consider opening more trails to motorcycles and limited size atv's as they do in Colorado. These trails can bring much needed economic boosts to the local areas. Also, look at what West VA has done with the Hatfield-McCoy trails. People come from all parts of the eastern US to enjoy these trails, providing quite a boost to the local economy.

Thank you for your consideration.
