Comments: Old growth forest destruction

My name is Andrew Accuardi,

I am writing to speak out against logging/road building in the Tongass National Forest. 1000 year old forests are hard to replace, and act as great carbon stores(something literally 95+% of scientists agree are important as defense against the existential threat of climate change). It will also disrupt our already fragile fisheries in the area.

We should consider the futures of our children and what kind of planet we would like to leave them.

Thanks,

Andrew
