To whom it may concern,

Alaska is widely recognized as "The Last Frontier," and it truly is. Removing the Tongass National Forest from the 2001 Roadless Rule would take from the state's charm and wildness. Alternative 6 appears as a pitiful attempt for the Alaskan government to try fix Alaska's tumultuous economy. Alternative 6 is not only an unsustainable attempt to support Alaska's economy, but will in the long run damage Alaska's image. Thereby reducing tourism and outside interest.
