Comments: citizen comment: Tongass and roadless rule

To whom it may concern:

I'm a homeowner in Alaska, for what it's worth. But more to the point (and which is worth much more), I'm a sincerely concerned citizen of a planet that is clearly, clearly changing hand over fist. As a species we do not lack for resources. We're doing very well in that department. But we do, so often, lack foresight, and we do, so often, lack global vision. Preserving Tongass and keeping the roadless rule intact is a necessity, not a luxury. But even if it were a luxury to do so, it would be a luxury we can well afford. I urge you to do all in your power to preserve this important place on our planet.
