To whom it may concern,

Please consider leaving this remarkable natural feature untouched. We have done enough to ruin the beauty that America once featured. The remaining beauty is so important to our young and future generations. There is so much to enjoy in the beauty.

Aside from that, it also boasts economic value. Millions of people travel to Alaska every year to see how beautiful it is. We are rapidly developing green transportation methods that will allow us to go see all of the untouched Alaskan landscapes. Turn your focus and energy this way. Don't digress; progress. Progress for the well being of our people, planet, and profit.

"National parks and reserves are an integral aspect of intelligent use of natural resources. It is the course of wisdom to set aside an ample portion of our natural resources as national parks and reserves, thus ensuring that future generations may know the majesty of the earth as we know it today."
