Comments: I moved to Southern Oregon 40 years ago because I fell in love with its beauty. I love to hike and ski in the forest and mountains. Oregon has been known for its beautiful forests, clean air and water. The pipeline threatens to harm all of those resources. It would cause degradation of waterways, threaten federally protected species and threaten our drinking water. I am particularly concerned about the increased danger of wildfire. The state warns that we are due for a huge earthquake. The devastation caused by ruptured pipelines gives me nightmares. I have voiced my concerns in the past through the FERC process and again express my opposition to BLM's plan to redesignate public forests to benefit a fossil fuel company.
