Comments: I am concerned about the vagaries of language in site based management. The project will be approved before specific sites and analysis are done. We won't even know where the project will be. It seems that public input will be irrelevant, as we don't know what area and systems will be affected.
And why the push to log so much more of Our national forests? We are looking at climate change and extinction. Bird populations are down by 1/4. Forests are so important, yet the Forest service seems unwilling to protect them. All this talk about habitats seems like a lie, so they more money can be made.

So I urge you to search you consciences and resist this project,.
