U.S. Forest Service Alaska Roadless Rule Committee:

The living trees in the Tongass are far more valuable to the Alaskan economy, and to the world in terms of oxygen generation, than any other use. Please ensure that there is no change to the Roadless Rule that allows any change to the current state of the forest.

The Roadless Rule has been instrumental in conserving the Tongass National Forest and in supporting its fish and wildlife-based industries for almost 20 years. Please uphold the Rule's protections for important fish and wildlife areas, including the Tongass 77. Roadless areas are an important source of food, jobs, and income through commercial, subsistence, and recreational fishing. Salmon are part of Alaska's culture and we must protect them and their spawning streams.

Sincerely,

Stuart Mork
