Comments: Two issues-related but distinct-render the current proposal unacceptable:
First, the area covered is way too large, and second, you provide almost no specifics about what you intend to do in any particular area. I suspect that covers for not having specific plans for particular areas and so you are seeking authority to do what you want wherever and whenever you want without any chance for the public to be involved. With the project so vast and amorphous, I can't really comment on your specific plans because there aren't any. Tell us something like in X cove we want to do this, along Y ridge that, and up Z stream something else-then we can applaud or object or offer suggestions, but with this there's nothing to say except "whoa."
