Comments: I'm contacting you with concern about this proposed project and the impact it can have on our forests. I don't think there are enough details provided to allow this to go through. I am all for conservation and restoration, but how much logging and pesticide usage within the areas?

I am also for clearing out pine plantations to reduce the risk of SPB, but what would be done to restore the forest to it's natural state and diversity. One of the main reasons for these out-breaks is having a forest of the same age. Clear cutting would not solve that at all, as you would just create another non-diverse forest and allow for another pest to move in.

This proposal is too general and the public needs to know how much is being cleared, sprayed, burned, etc. within the National Forest before this should be implemented.
