Comments: National forests are not a resource this administration can rob. They are a resource set aside for preservation and funded by the American taxpayer, it's citizens. They do not belong to the federal government, and you have no right to rob the public of our natural resources. Your cutting is limited to diseased and dying trees only. Anything else is public theft and an environmental catastrophe. Government does not rule nor own the people, the people rule government and pay the salary of the elected and appointed. Timber management must be by the law and the law only. Don't discredit public input,because we are watching.
