U.S. Forest Service Alaska Roadless Rule Committee:

Cutting down the Alaska's Chugach and Tongass National Forest will kill the fish population and fishing in that area which I like to due. It will not only kill the fish but cutting down all those trees will also add to climate change in a bad way. We people of this great country of the United States will follow what Brazil is doing is wrong.

The Roadless Rule has been instrumental in conserving the Chugach and Tongass National Forest and in supporting their associated fish and wildlife-based industries for more than 20 years. Please uphold the Rule's protections for important fish and wildlife areas, including the Tongass 77, by selecting the 'no action' alternative. Roadless areas are an important source of food, jobs, and income through commercial, subsistence, and recreational fishing. Salmon are part of Alaska's culture and we must protect them and their spawning streams. Please do not roll back roadless area protections for habitat that our irreplaceable fish and wildlife populations need to survive.

Sincerely,

Louis Buffone
