Comments: Wilderness Fees

Hi,

I believe Federal lands should be enjoyed by all citizens, not just the healthy, adventurous people that can hike for miles and/or wilderness camp. For those of us that cannot do these things, for various reasons, these wilderness lands are essentially off-limits to us. Due to their restrictive nature, including no roads, wilderness areas are only used by a very, very small percentage of the United States population, so why should the rest of us pay taxes for the administration of these lands? There are already camping and day use fees at many federally owned areas, so the "special" people that get to use wilderness areas should absolutely pay for their privilege to use them.
