Comments: This proposal would seem preposterous if it weren't serious enough warrant official public comment. There is no way that this is a good idea. First of all, herbicides have detrimental effect on wildlife in the area that are a part of the life cycle of a healthy ecosystem; the poison the water,and create the opportunity for invasive plants to take hold. Additionally, coming in and building new trails are harmful in many many respects but not the least is the opportunity to create unintended consequences for the flow of rainwater and disturbing habitat. These are lovely forests, they need little management. I have visited all but one.

We the people of Georgia, have a right to know what is being done in land in the public trust. That we would have no input or oversight is an outrage. I am completely against this rule.
