Comments: I use the Chattahoochee National forest as a wilderness area for hiking, camping, showing it to visitors, and educating my grandchildren.
I value it in its natural state, not as a resource to be harvested and exploited for gain.
I protest that exact details of any land management has not been made public so we can have a say in whether excessive logging, burning, rerouting trails and doing away with coming areas are not in the public interest.
The list without details or time limits for the proposed Foothills landscape must be discussed with the public before approval.

I, for one, just read about this this evening, and I do try to pay attention to such things.
