

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 1/8/2020 1:36:22 AM

First name: Frank

Last name: Perkins

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Logging, road construction, and application of herbicides should not be permitted on National Forest lands. There is precious little land left in Georgia that can provide for healthy ecosystems that can serve as habitat for a variety of vertebrate and invertebrate species. The last place where degradation of the land should be permitted is on public lands. The current formulation of the Foothills Landscape Project is unacceptable. The Forest Service must reconsider its position and maintain the lands as they are at present.