Comments: To whom it may concern, I have spent the better part of twenty-five years venturing into the Chattahoochee National Forest while living in Habersham County and Northeast Georgia, including general. I'm completely confused as to why any portion of the national forest would be set aside for anything other preservation and enjoyment for those who appreciate the outdoors. The very fact that it is called a landscape project is simply baffling as the land has been there for Millennia and there is no need to scape it or poison it or endanger it or reduce the habitats that are readily available now for any reason whatsoever.

We only have so much land that is set aside and I completely and wholeheartedly and passionately disagree with any venture that would change the land from the way it currently is. Sincerely Drew Davis
