Comments: I love the USFS and appreciate the need to manage land as a trade off for public access to green space. However, this plan lacks transparency and houses so much negative potential. I am a practicing Arborist (ISA) and Landscape Designer (BLA 2011, UGA) and in all my years of experience, I have yet to see a land management plan without specific site plans and impact studies. Neglecting such basic tenants of design is lazy, or worse, a bureaucratically assumed right. Please consider doing the right thing for the forest, the entity which you all have served so well over the years.
