Comments: I want to go on record as strongly supporting this proposal. As an avid outdoorsman, and one of the early purchasers of a lifetime hunting license in Georgia, I have seen first hand the results of the current "management", or lack thereof. Certainly we need some areas preserved where nature runs her course. But even those areas are being drastically altered by the pervasive effects of introduced species and climate change. We need to use science-based management to counteract those effects, and maintain the most productive forests we can. To do less is inexcusable and poor stewardship of this incredibly valuable resource.
