Comments: To whom it may concern,

I am very concerned about how this industry treats trees that they are cutting down for profit without regard for their importance to the environment , especially in this area. The industry is not honest about the trees they cut and how they are cutting them. Despite the erosion problems with soil that is depleted of the nutrients it gets from living trees, the area is clear cut if or a faster harvest. It is very distressing given our changing climate and the risk it poses to animals and humans alike. I hope you will reconsider the damage you are causing that will ultimately affect our future on this planet. Thank you for your consideration. Sincerely, Louise Frazier
