Comments: I have just read about this project today. All I will add is that I roamed this area some in the 70s and hunted it some in the 80s. I had not really been back wandering the woods again until this year. Habitat improvement to sustain health wildlife populations during four seasons is needed. Sunlight needs to reach the earth and promote the growth needed. I am sure all of the professionals reading this realize it and do not need anyone to inform them. I am not sure the general public understands the difference between conservation and preservation. All species will benefit from carefully planned conservation of the forest.
