Data Submitted (UTC 11): 1/10/2020 3:11:10 AM
First name: Jed
Last name: Green
Organization:
Title:
Comments: The Chattahoochee National Forest needs to be managed in a sustainable manner but with controlled cutting of timber to allow for diverse forest habitat. Early successional forest is critical for important species, especially Ruffed Grouse and whitetail deer. It is CRITICAL that selective forest cutting he allowed to adequately manage habitat for these species as their numbers in north Georgia have been in decline, especially the Ruffed Grouse.