Comments: I'm in favor of early successional habitat which is critical to grouse, deer, wild turkey and many other wildlife species. I'm also for several projects, including replacing or improving 225 stream crossing culverts so fish and aquatic organisms can better pass up and downstream, and by a proposed project to combat an invasive insect that kills critical hemlock trees. wildlife and forest management of the Chattahoochee National Forest in north Georgia needs to be fully restored. Fishermen, hunters and outdoor enthusiasts directly and indirectly fund many preservation and restoration projects throughout the country via taxes, fees and donations. We all want a well-managed, thriving national forest.
