Comments: More time and public communication should have been given for this project in light of the areas importance to the region culturally as well as economically to the surrounding communities through environmental tourism. The removal of old growth trees will release more carbon and further disrupt the balance they provide. Undisturbed forests do not need landscaping plans. Naturally felled trees allow light gaps needed to promote new growth. Using bulldozers to create temporary roads allows the introduction of invasive species to take hold. More information needs to be made public regarding exactly which areas would be disrupted.
