Comments: I am appalled that such drastic measures are being considered for land that should remain in trust in perpetuity. Those "new temporary roads" will blight the land; herbicide application will harm not only vegetation, but wildlife that depends on that vegetation for food and shelter; and 60,000 acres of commercial timber harvest? Outrageous. Clear-cutting is one of the true evils of our society.

I beg you to refrain from harming the Chattahoochee National Forest in this way. It's a national forest. That means it belongs to me and to the other countless people who want their children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren to have access to the best of nature for the rest of their lives.
