Comments: Im writing about the Foothills landscape project, specifically the proposed 74,500 acres of herbicide application. Routine (over)use of herbicides in or near National forest lands is abominable. Many of us choose to live in the wild beauty of these forested mountains for a healthier life, to avoid exposure to pollution. Herbicides are known carcinogens and/ or damage human systems such as reproductive, liver, digestive, etc. Beyond Pesticides organization provides succinct, scientific data on many herbicides and pesticides. There is a growing anger at Georgia Power company for broad scale use of herbicides in our region, and the Forest Service in GA and NC needs to be more accountable, representing the community. We DO NOT WANT herbicides and pesticides sprayed in our National Forests!!!!
Thank you,
