Comments: Greetings Forest Service Decision Makers,

While I'm not a Georgia resident and do not get to visit the Chattahoochee National Forest as often as I would like, I have spent some of the best days of my life there hiking, backpacking, and kayaking and enjoying the natural beauty of the area. Despite my relationship to the forest, I also understand that logging of the national forest to benefit the local economy is a necessary and justifiable use of the national forest; however, the scope of the current project is not well defined and quite open ended. If major invasive actions like road building, trail and campground decommissioning, and logging are to be conducted, their exact scope should be well defined for the public to comment upon. This type of project definition makes it impossible for the public to evaluate the costs and benefits of a project and provide clear feedback. I ask that the forest service rejects the current project and instead makes decisions about uses of the forest on a well defined case by case basis. Selfishly, I hope that the rejection of this project will lead to the Chattahoochee National Forest continuing to be a great destination for my family and that my 6 week old daughter who currently sits in my arms will be able to enjoy this forest as much as I have.

Thanks for your consideration,

Jim Janney
