Comments: I am a longtime Sunlight skier, based locally, and I think this looks like a great improvement for the area. The terrain served by the new lift is mostly already developed, but is hard to ski efficiently, and it is some of the best more challenging terrain in the area. The environmental impact looks really minimal - and most of it appears to have already taken place, with the cutting of the lift line and thinning of nearby glades. Mostly the project just seems to add what has long seemed a "missing piece" to a great local resort.
