Comments: I encourage a diverse use of the national forest for recreation including motorized vehicles, healthy forest measures for logging, brush management and other fire fuel reduction, and sustaining rural economies. All of this can be done while taking care of the eco systems and preservation of wildlife. Extreme environmentalist measures have put our forests in poor health. there is a balance for healthy, accessible forests while preserving the environment. Extremism on both ends of the spectrum are not good for our national forests/public lands. We need good negotiation and compromise to get things done on the national forest for the good of all.
