Comments: The crisis of the Wild horses and burros is a problem with the heavily subsidized Ranching Industry and wherever you see subsidies, that means on the dole of the Tax payers..to which I oppose vehemently, because they use Public Land despite their subsidies. You cannot have it both ways and this has to stop immediately. We are by far the fattest and most unhealthy country in the World and that includes the Selected Clown in the White House. We do not need more cattle and we should leave the wild horses and burros where they are, because believe it or not, they represent a Tourist Value who bring in millions of dollars every year. I know because I am an Interpreter-Travel facilitator, particularly in the Southwest and when I tell the Tourists what the America Government does to the Wild horses and Burros, they are incensed...This is also bad for tourism especially when we have lost our credibility with the rest of the World because of the present state of affairs in this country..Tourism is down because of it as well as the current idea of exploiting the National Parks for mining and oil extraction..Are you all out of your minds. The National Parks belong to the Natives and the American people and need to remain pristine.
