Comments: I am contacting you to submit a formal objection to the plan to remove any mustangs from Heber National Forest. This is a much loved and revered herd. There are conservation groups willing to step in and discuss better management strategies, in addition to using PZP to manage the herd. These mustangs live in deeply bonded family groups and the herd will not survive with genetic variability with the proposed number of 104. The public and myself do not know why or how the forest service decided on 104, and I would like to request an environmental impact study or some other kind of independent (non-governmental organization) study to explain why the forest service believes the number should be that low. Please listen to the people and do whats right, these mustangs are to be free.
