

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 2/22/2020 5:12:36 PM

First name: Ken

Last name: wahlman

Organization:

Title:

Comments: I have taken boy scouts on trips to the rim and specifically to the area in question. the excitement of them seeing these wild horses is fantastic they try to sneak around to get pictures and count how many each boy sees. (usually exaggerating greatly) why would you take this great Arizona treasure to put cattle on the land. I'm saddened that this is even being considered. i grew up in northern Arizona no one gets any warm fuzzy feelings seeing cattle in the Forrest, but seeing these horses turns little boys in to bouncing thrilled maniacs, making memories that will last a lifetime. that is what you would take away from our forests. memories beautiful experiences that you cant get on a farm or ranch.