Comments: I believe the herd of wild horses should remain where they are, given their origin and longevity in that area of our state. The horses represent our historical past of when horses ran free and wild all over the United States. This herd is well known and many people, including myself, love to see them free and in the wild. They should not be removed for ranchers and cattle interests from outside of Arizona. They should not be captured and "thinned out". They should be protected by the State of Arizona and the Forest Service. Additionally, the state and forest service should be working together to find who is shooting and killing them.
